a registration period, a two-week add-drop window, a mid-term exam week, and a final exam week. Interterm breaks such as Thanksgiving, Spring Break, and various university holidays are embedded within the schedule, providing students with built-in downtime. Understanding the sequence of critical dates is the first step in staying ahead. Registration Opens – Typically the first week of August for fall and early January for spring. Students must verify holds, confirm tuition payment plans, and select courses through the MyClemson portal. Add-Drop Period – A two-week window after registration where students may adjust enrollment without academic or financial penalty. Dropping a class after this period can affect full-time status and financial aid. Withdrawal Deadline – Falls about halfway through the term; withdrawing after this point incurs a W on the transcript and may impact GPA calculations.
